‘If you could ask God one question, what would it be?’ We all have something we want to know that can’t be answered by simple maths or teachers or our friends. Sometimes there are questions that are bigger than all of that. This book started with one of those questions. And it takes the rest of these pages to work through the answers, because these questions we ask today have been asked before. We are not the first ones to ask them. In spite of all the amazing moves and advances that our world has made in recent times, the questions remain the same. And it turns out that the biggest, most important, most meaningful questions that we have, have answers too. And this book aims to help you see it.
