What if I told you that the world you know today isn't the world that used to exist?

The story of Noah's great flood has always troubled me on a number of levels. Is it folklore? Could it have happened? Was there an all-powerful deity involved?

I thought I was familiar enough with the story, but when I started researching ancient historical records, I found out that I didn't know the story at all. Annoyed by nagging questions and sparked by curiosity, I opened a door that led to a completely different understanding of our past and a startling correlation with our future.

I invite readers to join me on a journey that cross references historical texts from a number of ancient civilizations with modern day scientific theory, Together, we'll piece together the backstory of life before Noah's Flood and seek answers to the question of why the entire world and all of its inhabitants were destroyed.

Puzzle piece after puzzle piece will be seamlessly connected in an effort to project what series of events may have triggered the devastation. Then, our attention will be drawn to how the events of Earth's past paint a portrait of mankind's future.
