A Parent's Pain, The Father's Touch

The phone call on April 4, 2007, was every parent's worst nightmare. Nancy Stern's precious daughter, Janah, was dead—at the hands of her abusive former husband. The bubbly 23-year-old had been shot and stabbed multiple times.

Plunged into a world of grief, rocked with questions, Nancy and her husband, Mark, clung to their faith. Choosing forgiveness over bitterness, love over hatred, trust over doubt, they looked to their heavenly father to lead them through.

While you never get over this kind of tragedy, Nancy says, you can find the strength to go on— and learn how God brings good out of even the worst.

As Nancy and Mark travel widely to share their story and their lessons, they bring hope and encouragement to others facing heartbreak of their own.

Join Nancy as she recounts their discovery of Sufficient Grace.
